ICCUSES DIVORCED HUSBAND

Manhattan, wife of Edwin Dickerson, OF HIDING THEIR DAUGHTER the custody for a part of the time of her daughter, Julienne Marion, fifteen, came up before Justice Kapper in the Brookly's Supreme Court to-day for trial. According to Mrs. Dickerson, she was divorced from Tainter in Texas in 1908 and romarried the same year.

By threats to have the divorce set aside, Mrs. Dickerson said, Tainter got her to sign an agreement giving up the custody of the child, and then, contrary to the agreement, took the girl away

It would be a great pity if anything would intervene that would deprive the consumers of the full benefits of The Evening World's victory, and the city should use the utmost care in its stewardship. The Government has registered all bids on the following items of subsistence: Canned meats and bacon, pickles, cucumbers, prunes, apples, peaches, rice, beans, hominy and onlons. It is learned, though not officially, that all bids on the roasting chickens were cancelled and that Secretary of War Baker was about to give his decision in what

The markets, both wholesale and foodstufts, while the release of the foodstufts, while the release of the surplus army meats is certain to have a levelling effect on all prices. A round-up of the wholesale beef houses found an accumulation of beef on the found an accumulation of beef on the found an accumulation of beef on the found and accumulation of beef on the found accumulation of beef on t found an accumulation of beef on the hooks, and the managers reported a small volume of business. One of the large wholesale mest receivers on 19th Avenue accounted for the light trade in this way: "Retail dealers are just buying from hand to mouth. On ordinary occasions we would hold thousands of hinds and ribs on the hooks to ripen and be delivered av needed, but at the moment I doubt if we have ten carcasses sold on the hooks."

DEALERS DIFFER ON SALE OF ARMY MEATS.

At a meeting of the retail meat dealers a few nights lago the army meats were discussed, but no action was taken. One of the leading retail butchers gave his views to The Evening World, as follows: "New York to the Newark and the retail of the retail meats at the twenty-ning World, as follows: "New York to the Newark and the available.

Another retail butcher who operates several stores in the Hariem district did not look as complacently on the situation as the others. He remarked: "We pay rent and taxes; we bought Liberty and Victory bonds; we helped to win the war. Now," he seys, "the Government bought more meat and hams and bacon and canned goods than it wanted thus depriving us of our business in distributing it. The retail butchers," he continued, "were just entitled to as much protection as any other class of citizens."

The persistence of the Automobile steams bound, compelling the consumers to pay $80,000 more for their chickens this week than would be the case if the Government refused to hold this poultry on track and compel it to be unloaded promptly on arrival. This was one form of speculation that the Government should have put its foot on."

The wholesale markets on butter, eggs and cheese are panicky. The expected export demand has falled to materialize, and with the American hen and dairy cow wiping out all previous records, the surplus keeps on piling up, while the consumers are paying 20 to 20 per cent. more for their butter, eggs and cheese than the highest point, reached during the world war.

Meats are slightly lower, especially the ordinary culs. The manager of a large market on the West Harlson side of the city when asked to give his views on the present pricas of meats compared with those fixed by the steaks from the steaks from the steer, yeal cultets from the veal caif, and loin and rib chops from the lambs.
